PART 2: THE NARRATIVE ARC – STRUCTURING YOUR STORY

Use this framework to outline your chosen essay. Aim for 550-650 words.

1. THE HOOK (Paragraph 1)

Start in the middle of a moment. Use sensory details.

Guiding Prompts:

- What did you see, hear, or feel in that key moment?
- What was the immediate conflict, question, or surprise?
- Avoid starting with “I have always...” or dictionary quotes.

Your Draft Hook:

2. THE CONTEXT & “BEFORE” (Paragraph 1-2)

Briefly set the scene. Who were you before this experience?

Guiding Prompts:

- What was your initial mindset or expectation?
- Why was this situation significant or challenging?

Your Draft Context:

text

3. THE TURNING POINT/REALIZATION (Paragraph 2-3)

This is the heart of your essay. Show a shift in understanding.

Guiding Prompts:

- What specific action did you take or observation did you make?
- What new insight dawned on you? (Show, don’t just tell the lesson).

- Use a short line of dialogue or a concrete detail to anchor it.

Your Draft Turning Point:

4. THE “AFTER” & REFLECTION (Paragraph 3-4)

How did you change? How does this insight apply more broadly?

Guiding Prompts:

- How did your actions or perspective change afterward?
- How does this single experience connect to a larger part of your identity or worldview?
- Don’t just list achievements; show how your motivation evolved.

Your Draft Reflection:

5. THE FORWARD LOOK (Final Paragraph)

Connect your past story to your future in college.

Guiding Prompts:

- How will this aspect of you engage with a college community?
- What kind of learner, roommate, or community member will you be?
- End with an image, a hopeful question, or a quiet statement of purpose.

Your Draft Conclusion:

PART 3: CRAFT & REVISION CHECKLIST

After your first draft, review each point.

Voice & Authenticity:

- Does it sound like you? Read it aloud.
- Have you removed clichés and overly formal language?
- Is the tone appropriate (reflective, not arrogant; honest, not overly self-critical)?

Show, Don't Tell:

- Instead of "I became a leader," do you show yourself organizing the team?
- Instead of "I am resilient," do you show yourself getting up after a specific failure?
- Instead of "I love chemistry," do you describe the reaction that captivated you?

Focus & Depth:

- Is your essay about ONE core story/idea explored deeply?
- Have you cut irrelevant background or secondary events?
- Does every sentence serve the main narrative?

The "So What?" Test:

- Would a reader know what you value by the end?
- Would they understand how you think or learn?
- Does it reveal something not found in your activities list or transcript?

PART 4: FINAL FORMATTING & POLISH

Before Submission:

- Word Count: Confirm it's between 250-650 words.
- Paste Test: Copy draft into a plain text editor to fix hidden formatting.
- Font: Use a standard, readable font (Times New Roman, Arial, Calibri).
- Spacing: Single or double-spaced for easy reading.
- Proofread: Check for typos, then have two people proofread it.
 - Reader 1: For grammar/spelling. (Done:)
 - Reader 2: For overall meaning and impact. (Done:)

Final Step: Let the essay rest for 48 hours, then read it one last time with fresh eyes.

Remember: The best Common App essay is not about the most extraordinary event—it's about your extraordinary reflection on an event. It's your story, told in your voice.
